DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's amendment filed on Sep 06, 2000 (Paper Number 11) has been received and entered. Claims 1-33 and 40-67 have been canceled, claim 34 been amended, and new claims 68-69 have been added, consequently claims 34-39 and 68-69 are pending in the instant application.
2. The rejection of claims 34-39 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Williamson et al (J Bacteriology 114 (1): 105-13, 1980) is maintained and applied to the newly added claims 68-69 for reasons made of record in Paper No 10, mailed 08/01/00.

In response to applicant's argument that it is unreasonable to assume that all of the cells of Williamson and Tomasz have a defective His-Asp phosphorelay pathway, it is noted that Novak et al clearly indicate that vancomycin tolerance in mutant Streptococcus pneumoniae is due to the defective His-Asp phosphorelay pathway (entire article). Therefore, one skill in the art can conclude that the vancomycin tolerant mutant Streptococcus pneumoniae of Williamson and Tomasz is a His-Asp phosphorelay pathway defective bacterial cell. Since the US Patent Office does not have the facilities for examining and comparing applicants' ~~product~~^{method} with the ~~product~~^{product} of the prior art reference, the burden is on applicants to show an unobvious distinction between the material structural and functional characteristics of the claimed ~~product~~^{method} and the ~~product~~^{method} of the prior art. Applicant has not ~~provide~~^{provided} any evidence to ~~show~~^{show} that the vancomycin tolerant mutant Streptococcus pneumoniae of Williamson and Tomasz is not due to the His-Asp phosphorelay pathway ^{being} defective. In response to applicant's argument that Williamson and Tomasz only provide cells that are vancomycin tolerant, it is noted that Williamson and Tomasz also teach a method of using the vancomycin tolerant cell that ~~has~~^{has} a defective His-Asp phosphorelay pathway (Materials and Methods, e.g., Susceptibility tests, Selection of tolerant, autolytic mutants, and Assay for release of wall material).

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
